CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY TO FINANCE NEW HOSPITAL BUILDING

Present Building Is Inadequate For Needs Of District

CONSOLIDATION THE KEYNOTE

Definite steps are now being taken to make an actual reality of what has been a dream for several years—a large modern equipped hospital to meet the constantly increasing demands of the great industrial section of the Upper Monongahela Valley.

For some time the Board of Directors of the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital Association have realized the present hospital building and equipment was inadequate. They have given much thought to the question and have decided the time for action is now. Plans for a new building have been drawn along the ideas and suggestions of architects who have made a feature of hospital construction.

These plans have been laid before the State Board of Charities and approved. The State board also emphasized its policy of favoring the consolidation of boroughs in the erection of one large, thoroughly equipped hospital rather than the erection of several smaller ones.

During the past week representatives of the Hockensbury System and the MacArt Organization, the former of Harrisburg and the latter of New York City, have been making a survey of the field and outlining plans for a campaign to raise funds to finance the erection and equipment of the new hospital. The men now here are Mark Holtzman of Harrisburg, Pa.; W. B. Evans, of Pittston, Pa., and J. Paul Swain of Louisville, Ky. Owing to the short space of time which is to be devoted to organizing the campaign, a larger force of directors than usually required are here. These campaign directors will draft plans for the campaign and suggest the proper steps to be taken in building up a large organization of workers for a thorough canvass of all the towns in the upper Monongahela Valley. The solicitation of subscriptions will be made by teams of workers under the direction of captains, all of whom will be residents in the several communities and who will volunteer to help in this great civic movement.

The campaign organizers who have been brought here by the Hospital Board of Directors have made a thorough survey and have been astonished at the lack of sufficient hospital facilities in such a big field. They have found the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital is the only one in a stretch of territory extending from Monongahela City to Brownsville, a distance of approximately twenty-five miles with a population of about 75,000 people, a large percentage of whom are industrial workers. NEW LAW GOVERNS SALE OF STALE EGGS

The Bureau of Foods of the State Department of Agriculture is getting ready to enforce the new law governing the handling of stale eggs, which are extensively used in this state for tanning purposes. Under the new law no bad eggs can be opened in buildings where good eggs are handled or where food products are manufactured. Eggs when removed from the shell for manufacturing purposes must be placed in containers painted bright red and such containers cannot be used for good eggs under any circumstances.

HEAVY DAMAGES ARE ASKED FOR INJURIES

Davis Woodward, of North Charleroi, is defendant in a $15,000 damage suit filed Friday afternoon. The plaintiffs are Arthur LaRoss, who is represented by his mother, Octavia Mercy, and Octavia Mercy in her own right. The suit is one based on an auto accident in which Arthur LaRoss was injured.

The statement of claim sets forth that on May 8, 1919, Arthur LaRoss was riding in a sidecar of a motorcycle driven by John Elgin. It is claimed that the motorcycle was struck by a truck belonging to the defendant, that the boy was thrown out and seriously injured about the head and body. It is claimed that his right side is paralyzed and that he will be an invalid and cripple for life.

The accident occurred near the entrance to the river bridge in North Charleroi. The driver of the truck is charged with running the machine in a reckless manner and in failing to take any precautions to stop when he saw that the collision was inevitable, although it is claimed that he had an opportunity to do so. It is further claimed that the driver of truck was not licensed. The plaintiff is the minor son of Octavia Mercy, his father having died several years ago. Since then he has contributed to his mother's support. Young LaRoss asks for $19,000 damages and his mother for $5,000.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. George Wagner of the arrival in New York City of their son, Lieut. James Wagner who has been in active service overseas for some time.

FIRST OCEAN FLYING PLANE A MUSEUM WRECK

A sixteen-hour career was all the time this airplane had to perform its life mission, but its feat will live forever—for it is the Vimy, Vickers machine—the first airplane to fly the Atlantic Ocean in a non-stop trip. Finishing the trip in a fog on the coast of Ireland, the machine buried its nose in a bog—battered and bent—but a victor over the elements. It will never fly again. The machine has been lifted—and taken to the London museum to be preserved. This is the Englishman and Yank who made the trip in the machine. Captain Jack Alcock, pilot, and Lieut. Brown, U. S., navigator, as they were welcomed by London crowds.

Mercantile Appraiser To Be Appointed By State

Appointments of all mercantile appraisers in all counties of Pennsylvania, excepting Philadelphia and Allegheny, was this week placed in the hands of the auditor general when Governor Sproul approved the bill providing that the chief fiscal officer shall have authority to name such officials before December annually. Appraisers have heretofore been elected by the county commissioners.

The bill also provides that the auditor general shall have control of the publication of the mercantile appraisers' list and publish it in "not less than two nor more than three newspapers of general circulation published in the respective counties, one of which newspapers shall represent the minority party of the two political parties of the county."

This act is one of a series planned to increase the revenue of the years. The third provides a system of filing reports and the fourth will enable collection of tax on loans assumed by corporations.

INDUSTRIAL CONCERN TO FIGHT THE EXCESSIVE COST OF LIVING

J. ELMER JOHNSTON

Candidate for Commissioner

The undersigned takes this opportunity to place before the voters of Washington County his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the office of County Commissioner at the primaries to be held in September 1919.

I was born in Peters Township, this county, where I still reside, and for which township I have, for the last four years, served as a Township Road Supervisor.

If nominated and elected to the office of County Commissioner it will be my highest aim to support an equitable plan of taxation and assessment, also to improve as many miles of our public roads as possible but also to maintain and keep in repair those already constructed, believing that it is useless to construct and then fail to maintain them.

Respectfully Yours,
J. Elmer Johnston.

TAKES PLUNGE TO SAVE DROWNING LAD

Peter Sample, a former Charleroi resident, now living in Tarentum, recently returned from service in France proved himself to be no less a hero in peace than he did in war. Wednesday evening by quick action he saved a boy from drowning in Allegheny river, when he plunged into the water, completely attired, and bringing the lad safely to shore. Sample is employed by the Flaccus Glass company at Tarentum, which recently took over the business of the Imperial Glass company of Charleroi.

CAN MAKE BEER OF LOW ALCOHOL STRENGTH

Manufacture and sale of beer containing less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol will be permitted by the brewing companies of Pittsburgh, it was announced Friday afternoon by United States District Attorney R. L. Crawford, following receipt of information from the department of justice on its stand on the question of making beer containing any percentage of alcohol.

Officials say Wage Increases Are Met by Advance in Foodstuffs

TO BUY GOODS BY WHOLESALE

The matter of the high cost of living is one of such serious consideration and one in which every citizen is vitally interested, that any plans looking toward a readjustment, with a view of lowering costs is always looked upon with interest.

It is reported that one of the largest industrial concerns in the Pittsburgh district, which employs approximately about 12,000 workers, is going into the food business in order to reduce the cost of living expenses to its employees.

The company's officials have been studying the situation for weeks. A representative of the company is getting prices from wholesalers and manufacturers of food products on about two dozen staples in the grocery line and its cost accountants are figuring what it will cost the company to go into this new field of action.

The plan as outlined at present is to sell to employees at cost, the company maintaining the overhead expense. The prices at which the goods have been purchased will be posted on a bulletin board daily in the storehouse where they may be inspected by workers. These prices will be carried out to the pound so purchasers will know what they are to pay for goods at the company's quartermaster's supply store.

Canned goods and smoked and other staples only will be sold by the company, about two dozen lines in all. The idea is to handle only such goods as purchasers can carry home and thus avoid delivery costs.

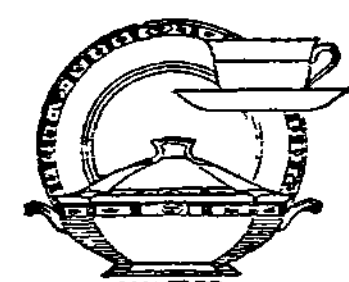

While the plan is in a measure an experiment its workings will be watched very closely by other industrial concerns and by workers, and if it proves to be a success it is likely that the plan will spread and be taken up by other plants employing large number of workers.

WILL BE MARRIED ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of John Tchoryk and Miss Teresa Paramiak, both of Charleroi, which is to take place in Russian Orthodox church, next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The pastor of the church will be assisted in the ceremony by the Rev. Ivanofka of Monongahela and Rev. Levkamick of Monessen. They will reside in Charleroi. Mr. Tchoryk recently returned from service in the army, having been a member of Co. L, 50th Infantry, and stationed at Camps Sevier and Dix.

THE AIRSHIP'S LOG

The log kept by General Maitland, commander of the R-34, is interesting not only as a record of the first balloon passage across the Atlantic and the longest voyage ever made in the air but as an account of an experience which thousands now living may some day enjoy. The growing conviction that the dirigible balloon will become a practicable means of carrying passengers imparts a human interest to Maitland's published log that is lacking in Read and Alcock's accounts of their more hazardous and uncomfortable aeroplane adventures. Readers of this story of a pioneer voyage may reasonably look forward to a time beyond the stage of experimentation when they in complete security may enjoy a similar experience.

In business-like fashion Maitland's log chronicles that the voyagers on the R-34 were not troubled by cold or wind and that there were windows to shut out the rain when it came. There was neither noise nor vibration enough to be unpleasant. There was room for exercise, regular eating and sleeping—none of the discomforts which plagued the aeroplane adventures who were necessarily on duty from start to finish. The men on the R-34 seem to have gone a boat their business, taken their rest and refreshment, and even enjoyed the wonderful views of sky and sea, with almost as much freedom and unconcern as the crew of an Atlantic liner. And, with berths, electric cookstoves and a promenade deck, why not? The thought that all of us—more or less—may live through a similar experience in days to come adds zest to the reading of the plain-spoken yet fascinating tale.

RICHES IN EXILE

As the thrifty Hohenzollerns have been reported to be keenly interested in putting away money for a rainy day as well as in imperial domination it is a surprise to learn that the former Kaiser drew no salary as Emperor until a few years before his abdication, the amount finally voted him being only $700,000 a year. Previously he had been forced to make both ends meet on his pay of $3,552,770 as King of Prussia until he pleaded "poverty" and secured an increase of about one million. Thus his salary as King and Emperor finally amounted to more than five and a half million dollars a year. He owned 250,000 acres of land and 56 castles, some of this property being richly productive. He also owned buildings in Berlin and other German cities which brought him large rentals. Yet in 1914 his fortune was estimated at only $55,000,000.

The fact that he was not the richest man in Germany may have been partly due to his habits of free spending. He is said to have been more lavish than any other German emperor in gifts to his family and members of the Hohenzollern house. He also paid high prices for works of art, subsidized theatres and opera houses and erected 32 statues of Prussia's kings and electors in Berlin at his own expense. What the German government will do with his estates remains uncertain, but even if they are forfeited he can still command riches in his exile—provided the victors leave him undisturbed—for he is known with prudent forethought to have deposited vast sums to his credit in the banks of neutral countries before he plunged the world into war.

THRIFT.

America now has been taught an excellent lesson in thrift through the government sale of war savings stamps. Too frequently nowadays the fact that pennies make dollars is lost sight of. Announcement by the United States treasury that savings stamps will continue a regular part of the government's financing is welcome.

Many financiers smiled when news came from New York soon after this country entered the war that Frank A. Vanderlip, then president of the National City Bank, America's largest financial institution, was going to Washington to devote his time to the sale of 25-cent stamps to help win the war. But the old adage that "the who laughs last laughs best" is quite applicable to the campaign of saving inaugurated to help defeat Germany.

With the news of the sale of stamps it is to continue some figures showing that these penny savings stamps of the nation had nearly covered half of the cost of the war up to June 1. The first stamp sale totaled $950,023,121—no ending sum, for it nearly equals the entire amount required for government expense in any normal year.

Individual collectors of stamps are small, but that fact commends the system all the more as a permanent inspiration. One of the greatest lasting benefits—if not the greatest—is the part children have played in stamp sales. Americans need to be taught the value of saving. And the biggest step in this direction is the teaching of thrift to the young.

WEALTH IN CROPS

The wealth of the United States in the form of crops promises to exceed that of 1918 and perhaps equal the record breaking amount of 1917. The Department of Agriculture reports that the corn yield promises to be 2,515,000,000 bushels. This is larger than the yield of 1918, but not as large as the yield of 1917. Wheat, however, promises to outstrip all records with a yield this year of 1,161,000,000 bushels as against 558,449,000 bushels in 1918 and 412,900,000 in 1917. The oat yield will be slightly less than 1918 or 1917 and will reach 1,403,000,000 bushels. Rye will go ahead of the last two years reaching 108,000,000 bushels. The high cost of living will not worry the farmers very much.

Merry shafts have been winged at the expense of Ohio's inconsistency in permitting a prize fight and forbidding motion pictures of the same. Yet obviously there is a difference in moral effect inconsequence of the fact that the young person has the price and the liberty of fail of both in the case of a prize fight. Even seasoned adults, after consulting their pocket books, will flock in millions to the movies while gathering only in hundreds to see skilled "bruisers" pound each other.

After having forced prohibition on the country through federal enactment, we venture that the solid Democratic South is going to squeal terribly for "State's Rights" when the federal government takes a hand in the enforcement of the constitutional laws that allow every man, regardless of color, to exercise the franchise. It certainly does make a difference whose ox is gored—Baltimore Star.

The most adventurous of all stowaways was the man who sneaked aboard the R-34 and managed to conceal himself successfully. Apparently he was just about scared to death, for it is mentioned that he took a fever and his temperature ran up to the incredible height of 129 degrees. He is likely to choose an Atlantic liner next time even at the cost of fewer thrills.

The absurd ruling that the government, which issued them, will not take back its three-cent stamps goes along with the rule that it was not accept a railroad ticket tomorrow that is dated today. The cold-blooded and ridiculous regulations speak for government management far more than words can. The people are a different lesson from the best of teachers, experience.—Hartford Courant.

The project to make New York City the world's medical capital, an honor heretofore divided between Berlin and Vienna, has a reasonable basis. America is already well to the fore in surgery and has made notable contributions to the science of bacteriology. Whatever cash may be necessary can doubtless be raised without much difficulty.

Georgia comes to the fore as the first state to refuse to ratify the woman suffrage amendment. It may be taken for granted that the other Southern states are likewise opposed, with the exception of Texas, and if any of them ratify it is apt to be the result of a desire to be on what is expected to be the winning side.

William Allen White is quoted as saying to a British audience that "we Americans make no claim that we were of any particular military value in this war." William Allen wouldn't be likely to say that in this country for he is the first American yet heard from who entertains such a view.

Moonshiners Find a Rough Road

"Most of man's best laid plans—those made before July first—are very fast being uncovered and wrecked. The word 'moonshine' no longer means mountains and feuds. It can mean a loft in a sky scraper—or a sub basement under a florist shop, as federal agents are proving. In every state, city and town—illicit moonshine stills are being confiscated. Here is a more elaborate brass coil still taken in a raid at Chicago. Federal agents are examining it.

Now that the ban has been lifted on emigration a greater exodus than ever is expected to take place from the United States. Former residents of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Bulgaria will avail themselves of the opportunity to go back home to see in what condition their countries have been left by the war. This exodus is going to take a great number of laboring men from the United States, most of whom will likely remain on the other side.

France has taken the proper and only adequate measure against the food profiteers—the slimy and nauseous creatures who fatten upon the afflictions of the people and control the food and the clothing supplies. It has imposed the death penalty upon all persons so convicted. This is the answer of France to the arrogance of the profiteer.

A recently interned German having celebrated his first day of liberty by cursing the first American uniform he saw was promptly fined $151.45 by a Baltimore magistrate. It is safe to predict that he will shy at more curses at $151.45 a curse, with the hazard of a thrashing prior to arrest thrown in.

Senator Ashurst recently side-stepped "any extended eulogy of the soldier" on the ground that he does not expect "to run for office for some time." Apparently the Senator from Arizona is in no hurry to concern himself in connection with the new soldier vote because his term does not expire till 1923.

The President of the Federation of British Engineers says it is obvious that the people of Britain must make up their minds definitely to trade with Germany. It has been obvious all along that the only way in which Germany can pay her debts to the Allies is by supplying them with goods.

Not many people cared to live on the plains of North Dakota under any conditions, and now that Socialism has united with cyclones and blizzards to make residents there unhappy and uncomfortable we do not anticipate a heavy increase in emigration to that state.

The New York water department has announced that on July 1st New York used internally and externally 23,000,000 more gallons of water than on June 30. Whatever may be the proper interpretation of these figures, it is obvious that New York's first dry day was a pretty wet one.

Agriculture pays so well in these days of fortunes for the producers that the old eagerness among boys on the farm to go to the towns and become second-rate salesmen or clerks is reported to be fast disappearing.

The young man who conspires with his barber to make himself look like a bald person with a hairy cap on may have coolness but can not have comeliness in view. Such a haircut may well be described as the limit in the possibilities of ugliness.

NEW HEAD ELECTED FOR CALIFORNIA NORMAL

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Southwestern State Normal School, at California, on Thursday afternoon, Prof. John A. Entz, head of the department of mathematics and chemistry at the Normal for the past two years, was elected principal to succeed Prof. Walter Scott Hertzog, who resigned some time ago. Prof. George F. Dunkelberger, head of the department of education at the Normal for the past three years, was elected vice principal. The new principal and vice principal will assume their new duties on the first day of August.

Prof. Entz is a graduate of Albright College, Myerstown, Pa., with a degree of Bachelor of Arts. Prof. Dunkelberger is a graduate of Susquehanna University, Selins Grove, Pa., and also has an A. B. degree. Both are practical school men and have had considerable experience.

SUNDAY CONCERT IN MONESSEN

The Pittsburgh Steel Products have given their usual weekly concert at the Sixth street band stand, Monessen, Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Last Sunday the band appeared at Belle Vernon, the object being to give concerts in the towns in which men employed at the steel products plant reside.

TO FORM LEAGUE WITH FOUR TEAMS

It is reported that a four-team baseball league will be organized in this section of the valley, to run through the months of August and September. The proposed league will be composed of teams from Monongahela, Ellsworth, Charleroi and Star Junction. All four clubs are fairly evenly matched and should furnish excellent baseball. Each club will play two games each week, one twilight and one on Saturday afternoon. A meeting is to be held in Charleroi this evening to complete the organization.

CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY TO FINANCE A NEW HOSPITAL

To serve this extensive field, the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital has only 25 beds, and none of the equipment and facilities considered essential in a modern hospital, excepting a good surgical room.

The need of a new hospital building is great, it is urgent, we must have it as soon as possible. The plans for an intensive campaign for the funds necessary to raise the money for this big hospital are being developed. They will be along the organized system by which the Hockenbury and the MacArt organizations have assisted in communities in raising millions of dollars for new hospital buildings. The enthusiastic co-operation of the people of the valley will guarantee the success of the commendable efforts of the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital Board of Directors.

The headquarters of Charleroi's part in this campaign are now being opened in the new Municipal Building.

NEW HEALTH LAWS ARE NOW IN FORCE

Legislation which increases the jurisdiction of the state department of health over quarantines for communicable diseases was approved on Thursday by Governor Sproul when he signed the Gans bill. The measure is the result of the troubles experienced in the enforcement of the influenza quarantine last fall.

Under the bill drastic regulations are made concerning reports of physicians, school authorities and teachers and all health authorities. The measure carries a schedule for length of quarantine for various communicable diseases and carries heavy penalties for violations.

The Fayette City Independents have arranged a game with the Homestead Grays, the strongest colored base ball team in western Pennsylvania. The Fayette City boys are, expecting a hard battle, but hope to be able to show the visitors the way. Manager Henry Wilson has his team going in good shape this season, and will present a strong line-up. Hi Elliott will do the twirling for Fayette City, and when Hi is going right there is sure to be a ball game. The game will be called Tuesday evening, July 22 at 6:30.

WATER BABIES TO APPEAR IN CHARLEROI

The Water Babies will give an exhibition at the Charleroi bathing beach at a date to be announced later. It is said they have a number of new stunts which they will present for the entertainment of the people. They have been appearing at a number of places during the summer and have always given a splendid display of their ability as swimmers.

INDIANA COUNTY IS SHORT OF TEACHERS

As a result of the shortage of school teachers in Indiana county school boards have appealed to the county superintendent for aid in securing sufficient instructors. Many of the district elections were recently and in almost every district the directors were unable to secure teachers for all the schools.

The New Bedford Standard has drawn up this formula:—"Of dancers it may be observed that when they are barefooted they are aesthetic, and when they do not wear any clothes to speak of they are interpretive, the two combining and making them classical."

Republican leaders in Congress promise to take the tax off soft drinks. It may extend to other like purchases as this tax hits the younger generation with particular force.

It looks as if beer was down and out for the count, during wartime prohibition. If the breweries won't make it, or sell it or deliver it, what are you going to do for a case?

"Presidents may come and Presidents may go, but our President does both," is the latest contribution of a comedian to the gaiety of nations.

FISH THAT KNOWS NO FEAR

Killer Whale Easily Holds Title of Most Ferocious of the Animals of the Deep.

The killer whale is one of the most deadly animals that swim in the sea.
Killer whales are found in almost every corner of the world, but, because of the nature of their food, they use as hunting grounds the sounds and bays along the coast, rather than the open sea. They are voracious predators, constantly destroying more than they eat.

Killer whales apparently will eat anything that swims," says Roy C. Andrews, of the American Museum, who has been studying whales for some time. "Fish, birds, seals, walrus and other mammals are all its prey. Its capacity is almost unbelievable. There is a record of three teen porpoise and fourteen seals being taken from the stomach of a 21-foot specimen." The capacity of the killer has given rise to a number of fantastic tales, one of which tells of a killer being seen with a seal under each upper fin and a third under its dorsal fin and a fourth in its mouth. In pursuing, the killer bellows in a terrifying manner.

Killer whales are the only whales that feed upon their own kind. They sometimes go in company by dozens and set upon a young whale, biting him like so many bulldogs. Some will lay hold of his tail, while others bite at his head and thrash him until the animal dies.
So great is the strength of the killer that a single one, by fastening its teeth into the body of a dead whale being towed by several whaling boats, can carry it to the bottom in an instant.
They know no fear and in parties they will attack the largest whale.

Not even a ship or a number of ships can daunt the ferocious killer who frequently, through its boldness, help whaling parties by terrifying their mutual prey into nonresistance.—From an American Museum of Natural History Bulletin.

MANY PERSONS 'SOUND BLIND'

Peculiar Affliction That It Is Now Asserted Is Not Uncommon Among Mankind.

Color blindness is by no means an uncommon complaint, for many people, although they may possess perfect eyesight for reading or seeing long distances, are quite unable to distinguish between green and red and many other pairs of colors. Lately it has been found that some suffer from an exactly similar affection of the hearing power—that is, an inability to distinguish particular shades of sound.
A school teacher reports a boy who could not distinguish at all between the sounds of "very," "berry" and "polly," and yet he could hear at as great a distance as anybody. Another rounseur would spell "Different" "drifent." He said that was how it sounded to him. Several others run the letters "r," "n" and "t" together in a hopeless way, being unable to tell one from the other.

Robert Louis Stevenson's Prayer.

Robert Louis Stevenson's last prayer tells us how all great men live by faith of the life immortal. Assembling his servants, at the end of the day, in his house in Samoa, he prayed: "Behold us with favor, folk of many families and nations; gathered together in the peace of this room. Weak men and women subsisting under the covert of thy patience, be patient still. Suffer us yet a while longer, with our broken purposes of good, with our idle endeavor against evil. Bless us to our extraordinary mercies: if the day come when these must be taken, brace us to play the man, under affliction. Call us up with morning faces and with morning hearts, eager to labor, eager to be happy, if happiness shall be our portion, and, if the day be marked for sorrow, strong to endure."—From a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hall at Brooklyn, N. Y.

Giotti.

Vincenzo Giotti was a native of Bologna, born about 1580. He became a scholar of Dionysius Calverte at the time that Guido Reni studied under that master. At twenty years of age he went to Rome in company with Guido, and there painted some pictures. He was then invited to the court of Naples, where he passed the remainder of his life. Giottopossessed so ready an invention, and such surprising facility, that Orlandi states, from a list of his works, found after his death, that he had painted no fewer than 218 pictures for public positions in the different towns of the kingdom of Naples. He died at Reggio in 1638.

Study the Words of Songs.

In their efforts to secure good diction—by taking lessons from a high-priced coach—singers often overlook the benefit which may be secured by reading, with careful attention, the texts of the songs they are to sing.

It is manifest that a singer who cannot give an intelligent reading of a poem cannot give an intelligent interpretation of that poem in singing.
The value of each word, each phrase, and their relations to each other and to the whole thought, are legitimate objects for thorough study. Especially is this true of the pause which is so valuable in speech or in the reading of a poem.

"JEWELRY" OF MASAI WOMEN

Telegraph Wire Considered Choice Personal Adornment by Females of British East African Tribe.

Of all Africa's many tribes, none is more distinctive than the Masai, that warlike race of British East Africa, whose women are regarded as the best looking of all negroes. They are slender, well formed, and lack the abnormal hips so characteristic of many other natives. Pride in personal adornment is shown by ornaments of a remarkable nature, telegraph wire being coiled about their arms and limbs in spiral fashion.

So awkward is this remarkable jewelry that the wearer cannot walk properly, nor can she sit down nor rise like other human beings. Round her arms she has wire coiled both above and below her elbows, while still more wire is coiled round her neck horizontally, till the head seems to sit on an inverted iron silver. Put on at an early age, these ornaments must remain unless they are saved off. As a result of this compression the limbs remain like mere stumps, the wire frequently becoming embedded into the flesh. Besides this iron wire, often weighing 30 pounds or more, great quantities of beads and iron chains are hung in various ways round the neck.

During the period of engagement the girl wears round her head a band covered with cowries from which hang a number of strings forming a bridal veil.
For the first time she dons real clothes, consisting of an apron in front, suspended from the shoulders behind. The hairs of the eyebrow are pulled out to further enhance her beauty.

DO YOU THINK IN PICTURES?

According to Men Who Have Studied the Subject, Most of Us Unconsciously Have That Habit.

A writer says: "A good many men and a larger number of women and children think in pictures without knowing it. If some one speaks of a tree, an oak or an elm, or a pine—do you see a composite tree of your own design, or a particular tree you knew, perhaps, in childhood? Do you see a bare or in full leaf? If you are one of those who think in pictures, you will find that you always see the same picture for the same words." Prof.
Francis Galton, F. R. S., is the expounder of this belief, and after all, is it not merely a return to the very origin of our written language, the hieroglyphs of Egypt? In that primitive time it is possible that a word brought so clearly to mind a mental vision of an object or an action that it could easily be summarized into an ideograph. In our more complex life we have, of course, lost sight of the facts, and no longer realize that the word "tree" means to us a well-defined object probably fixed in the brain by one of the minute lesions—or its cicatrix—which science tells us are the sources of memory.

We unconsciously assemble these various memories and unconsciously form of them pictures which, if we are suddenly brought to ourselves, we might well retain on the mind's retina for a time, just as we retain dream images vividly on suddenly awakening.

Early Protest Against Tipping.

The word "tip" is said to be derived from the initial letters of the phrase "To Insure Promptness," but as "tips" usually follow, instead of preceding, service, they insure nothing, and as a consequence anti-tipping crusades are constantly being threatened. But protests against tipping are by no means of modern growth. George I. complained about it when he first came to the throne—and England. "This is a strange country," he declared. "The first morning after my arrival at St.
James' I looked out of the window and saw a park with walks and a canal, which I was told were mine.
The next day Lord Chetwynd, the ranger of my park, sent me a fine brace of carp out of my canal, and I was told I must give 5 guineas to Lord Chetwynd's servant for bringing me my own carp out of my own canal in my own park."

Putting It Plainly.

Among the many good stories contained in the private papers of Admiral Sir William Hotham, is one about Gen. O'Hara, who, as governor of Gibraltar, discovered that an officer who had lately joined had come on parade with an umbrella.

The wind that day was easterly, and the general perhaps was unduly affected by this circumstance, but in very unmeasured terms he ordered the delinquent to throw away the offending implement; and after adding other comments, concluded thus: "And pray, sir, in future understand that you are not to appear upon this parade with an umbrella—no, not if it is raining pikes with the sharp points downwards!"—London Tit-Bits.

One beautiful use his window had, one glorious use, one enchantment.
In the depth of winter sometimes of mornings when he got out of bed and went to open the shutter, on the windowpanes would be a forest of glittering trees. The first time he beheld such a forest, he stood before it spellbound; wondering whether there were silvery birds singing far off amid the silvery boughs, and what wild creatures crouched in the tall, stiff frost-grass. From the ice-forests on the windowpanes his thoughts always returned to the green summer forest on the distant horizon.—James Lane Allen, in "The Ken.cky Warbler."

Truth About Burns.

A remarkable little book by Mr. William Will, president of the London Burns club, based on the recent discovery of a manuscript volume of the letters of the Dumfries volunteer, has knocked some calumnies about Burns on the head. "Robert Burns as a Volunteer," the book referred to, by Sir Ian Hay, shows that in Dumfries in 1795 Burns so far from being socially an outcast or habitually drunk, mixed with the most influential citizens in the volunteers, served on the committee, and was never once fined for nonattendance at drills or any other offense, though fines were freely and sternly enforced on both officers and men."

Japanese Restaurants.

In Tokyo there are restaurants old and new; the old, established generations ago, which specialize in one or other particular dainty; the chief establishments of this character will be found in Hurt-by-Eating lane, Nihon-bashi; the new, an endless medley of cheap foreign-food restaurants, beer halls and saloons. A large part of the commercial population depends for its midday meal on these places. The official population also has to be provided for, and lately a municipal official has suggested the establishment of municipal dining rooms in all the centers of Tokyo. Food would be provided by an officially established market.

Only "Key to Health."

Writing on the subject of pneumonia, one of the scientists of the Rockefeller Institute said that most people have the pneumonia germ in their throats at all times and that the reason the disease does not develop is because the system is strong enough to resist the germs. Evidently the key to health lies in determining what constitutes "resistance" to disease and how this condition may be attained and maintained. The usual prescription for "building up" or increasing "resistance" and vitality is fresh air, exercise and "plenty of good, nourishing food."

One of the most interesting discoveries by Egyptologists throws new light on the relative origin of copper and bronze in the Mediterranean countries. At Ortu Commude, alongside some ancient copper mines of prehistoric age, a foundry has been uncovered with all the furnace for smelting and molds for casting just as it was abandoned thousands of years ago in the transition periods between the ages of stone and bronze. The methods then obtaining in the foundry industry as here demonstrated were most ingenious.

Chicken Fee for Marrying.

Everywhere chickens are a favorite contribution to the church, but in the Philippines this gift has a special meaning. When the missionary sees Alejo coming up the steps with a chicken under his arm he immediately begins to rehearse the refectorial for "Dearly beloved, we are gathered together." And sure enough, the conversation about the mission's health and the weather and the crops always ends with: "Ah—ah—pastor—ah—could you marry me—and Juanita—on Wednesday?"—Adeleide Lyons in World Outlook.

To Remove Tight Ring.

Pass the end of a piece of fine twine underneath the ring and wind it evenly around the finger upward as far as the middle joint. Then take hold of the lower end of the "ring" beneath the ring and begin to slowly unwind upward, when the ring will gradually move along the twine toward the tip of the finger and come off. Always hold the hand upright when trying to remove a ring.

Health and Happiness

Women of today seem to listen to every call of duty except the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. Home duties, church duties, war activities, and the hundred-and-one calls for charitable enterprises soon lead women to overdo.
Nervousness, headaches, backaches and female troubles are the inevitable result.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which, added to my weak condition, kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness. Health and happiness?
Yes, I have both now."—Mrs. J. W. Williams, 2842 North Taylor Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of women nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down nervous condition with headaches, backache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop.
Avoid them by taking in time
